

We Help Build Strong Foundations and Establish Secure Footings

Hutchinson and Bloodgood LLP construction industry consultants understand the daily decisions construction business owners face regarding competition, job-cost overruns, changing regulations, bonding requirements, taxation and accounting that affect your bottom line. We are here to help.

Factors, including weather, material prices and the economy, can affect cash flow and impact your level of success. We know that as your business grows, you need to balance even more complicated cash flows. Managing receivables and payables as well as monitoring and maintaining your bonding capacity become increasingly more critical.

Our team consists of professionals with a wide variety of experience in construction, including engineering and financial management. We have hands-on experience with commercial, residential and industrial subcontractors and suppliers. Many of our team members are certified as Construction Industry Technicians. All are passionate and dedicated to serving you, can advise you on complex issues and provide you with security, profit and peace of mind.

Build Your Bottom Line

General and specialty contractors have relied on us for business plans that minimize risk and control cost, financial reports that help streamline complex decisions and consulting, auditing and tax services that keep you in compliance. Whether you need assistance analyzing working capital, qualifying for financing, handling complicated cash flows, evaluating job costing systems, or project estimating, our expertise will help ensure your success. We bring people and resources together to deliver practical solutions that fit your needs.

"I am very pleased with Hutchinson and Bloodgood LLP. Their industry expertise and team of professionals provided me with up-to-date solutions for my business."
